Subscriptions: One year, $3; one month, 25 cts; single copy, 1 cent.
 Members of the Publishers' Press.—The latest telegraphic news from all parts of the world are received by the Daily Times up to the hour of going to press.
 Frank E. Langley, Publisher.
 Published Every Weekday Afternoon.
 Entered at the postoffice at Barre as second class matter.
 WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 5, 1903.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

2,706

Are You In It?

The Daily Times carries considerably more advertising than any other daily in Washington county. It gets higher rates for it, too, because The Times has the largest circulation. Is your advertisement in The Times? The Times originates, the others follow, excepting only when it comes to telling circulation daily to all. The Times circulation books, press room and all else open to your inspection.

The sometimes lucid Wilmington Times presented this last week: There does not appear to be many lucid intervals in the new liquor law. Which shows that this was not one of the newspaper's lucid intervals.

The health statistics for the city of Barre for the month just passed, as shown by the report of the health officer, Dr. J. W. Jackson, are remarkably good. The people of the city may be pardoned if they point to the fact that there were only seven deaths and not a single case of contagious disease reported to the health officer.

Since laying down the editorial pen, "Jack" Harris, formerly at large, now holding down a section of earth in "Danville, Lily-white county," has been busily engaged in delving to the earth. We are glad to note that he is enjoying life, as is evidenced by a portion of a letter which he writes to the Vergennes Enterprise, as follows: "Personally, I like to dig in the earth. I like to use a plow or harrow or shovel or hoe. I like to work with nature in producing the fruits of the earth. I like to plant and hoe and harvest. I have done a few things in this world which have given me my share of decent reputation but I never did anything of which I am so proud as I am in having produced two thoroughly first class gardens this season."

Notwithstanding the promised tie-up of the cotton mills of the North owing to the fact that speculators have secured a corner in cotton, the announcement is made that the two mills in Burlington are not likely to be affected as are the others. Already several mills in the North are shut down owing to the inability to get cotton, but the Free Press is authority for the assertion that the tie-up is not likely to affect the business in the Queen City of this state. One of the mills has enough cotton on hand to last the rest of the season, while the other is in a position to get whatever it wants. The threatened general tie-up will be quite far reaching in its consequences and it is a matter of congratulation if the Burlington mills are not affected thereby.

Interesting developments have been going on in the business of the United States Steel corporation, and not the least interesting of these is the relieving of Charles M. Schwab of the presidency of the corporation and the appointment of William Ellis Corey as his successor. Now this office carries with it besides its arduous duties, a salary of one million dollars, and it is only natural to infer that a man once elected to the position would try to hold it. But Schwab steps down and out. What are the reasons back of the move is a matter of conjecture as the general public has been kept in the dark regarding the change. The information was given out that Schwab's health had failed him and that he needed a rest. Then an assistant was appointed to do his work and now that assistant has become the head of the corporation. Meanwhile the former head has been chasing about, supposedly in search of that elusive thing called health, and endeavoring incidentally to escape the prying eyes of the newspaper reporter. Whatever glimpses of him the latter has caught have not revealed a strikingly low condition of vitality. On the contrary Schwab has appeared to be in excellent health. Therefore the surmise on the part of the public that there is something else back of his resignation.

ABOUT THE STATE.

Items of Interest Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

The Outing and Old Home Week Club of South Royalton are sending out invitations to the sons and daughters of the town to attend the Old Home Week celebration there Thursday, August 20.

The 50th anniversary of the birth of Thomas A. Straw of Stowe, was observed August 2 by the usual family gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Straw, Diner was served in Mr. Straw's new lumber shed. Six children, ten grandchildren, eight great grandchildren, and other relatives to the number of forty-four were present.

There is no foundation whatever to the report that work had been suspended on the Norcross-West marble quarry at South Dorset and that the Manchester, Dorset & Granville railroad was idle as a result. Work continues as usual at the quarries and on the railroads and the company's mill at Manchester Depot is running day and night with no prospect of shutting down.

The funeral of Elias L. Griffith, ex-state senator and the lumber king of Vermont, who died in San Diego, Cal., July 21, was held in the Congregational church at Danby yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The church was crowded with friends and relatives of the deceased, the congregation including many prominent men from all over Vermont. The Rev. Samuel N. Jackson of Burlington officiated. The burial was at Danby.

B. B. Rawson, a Rawsonville farmer, has on exhibition a woolly calf with a tail like that of a rat, at the end of which is a tuft of white hair. The calf is dark brown and white, the latter color predominating and covering, with a few exceptions, its back, side head and legs. The brown spots feel like wool or fur. The white hair is longer than the ordinary hair of a six-weeks-old calf. The white spots, a little way off, resemble cotton batting. The little animal is a curiosity and the attraction of the Rawson neighborhood.

General Miles' Ride.
 No fight was on as in Sheridan's case: He hurried not to battle.
 No foe's encroachments caused his race
 Through the land of corn and cattle.
 'Twas not to save a falling life:
 'Twas not for wealth—he'd plenty.
 'Twas just to see
 If, at sixty-three,
 He was still a boy of twenty.

'Twas Miles who rode over miles of road,
 While the farmer stared in wonder.
 And turned aside with his heavy load,
 As the air was split asunder.
 When a horse gave out it was cast aside:
 Each time the warrior shed one
 He'd softly say
 As he looped away,
 "I'll show 'em I'm no dead one!"

To the birds he said as he sped along,
 "I feel as gay as you do."
 But they were "on" and said in song,
 "Eh, age, poor man's, he's too old."
 The sun shone down on the warrior's back,
 And, though its heat was cooking,
 He did not groan
 Or even moan
 (Two aids, you know, were looking).

Without mishap he made the ride,
 And, e'er he sank in slumber,
 "I've showed my steel," he softly sighed.
 "They know I'm no back tumbler."
 In years to come they'll tell how Miles
 Raced through a land of plenty
 And found that he,
 At sixty-three,
 Was still a boy of twenty.
 —Bible Dudley in Kansas City Star.

His Education.
 "How well you row, Percy!"
 "Yes, I suppose I do. A fellow has to learn something at college, you know."
 —New York American.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

The Best of All.

 "A check book," she replied without

The Common Fate.
 Dan Cupid limped into his office:
 All battered and bruised was his head.
 A bandage and splints graced his person.
 "I slipped a love match," he said.

 Is rather fast, they say."
 "He'll have to be quite fast or she Won't let him get away."
